Comment: I believe the changes at Chalker's Corner are wholly insufficient to deal with the significant numbers of extra people and cars envisaged by the brewery planning applications.

The traffic around Chalkers Corner is already terrible with frequent, huge, pollution-generating traffic jams. There appears to be little consideration of how transport in the area can be alleviated by extra buses, significant improvements to Mortlake station, train services and the crossing.

I also feel it is unfair that the residents of Chertsey Court are so adversely affected, and I'm concerned by the number of mature trees that will need to be felled.

Surely the solution is to significantly reduce the density of housing and commercial units in linked development A and B, so the traffic problem is more manageable and Chalkers Corner doesn't become a giant car park of cars.
