

Thatcher, Lucy

From: Jules Hess <[REDACTED]>
Sent: 26 June 2019 08:17
To: Shilstone, Rebecca
Cc: Steve Chapman
Subject: Stag Brewery development

Dear Rebecca Shilstone,

Despite the alleged changes in the proposals, we continue to be appalled by these plans. The levels of congestion and pollution are all too well imaginable. As it is, with the fiasco of the Hammersmith Bridge closure (indefinite - how wonderful) it is very frustrating getting to Hammersmith and even Richmond. There are constant bottlenecks and the lunacy of the changed bus routes is maddening. Now we face the prospect of hundreds of new homes, more cars and a deteriorating environment. Residents near Chalkers Corner already call it Chokers Corner.

I don't think the council is aware of the anger of us in Mortlake, or maybe you don't care. Have you even considered the impact on Mortlake station, the constant queues of drivers who refuse to turn off their engines, the palpable sense of barely contained fury among bus users and commuters ALREADY?

This development is going to be disastrous, but I guess no-one in the council lives here, so the developers can laugh all the way to the bank.

Yours disgustedly,

Jules and Tony Hess (3 Cowley Road)

Thatcher, Lucy

From: Jules Hess <[REDACTED]>
Sent: 26 June 2019 08:17
To: Shilstone, Rebecca
Cc: Steve Chapman
Subject: Stag Brewery development

Dear Rebecca Shilstone,

Despite the alleged changes in the proposals, we continue to be appalled by these plans. The levels of congestion and pollution are all too well imaginable. As it is, with the fiasco of the Hammersmith Bridge closure (indefinite - how wonderful) it is very frustrating getting to Hammersmith and even Richmond. There are constant bottlenecks and the lunacy of the changed bus routes is maddening. Now we face the prospect of hundreds of new homes, more cars and a deteriorating environment. Residents near Chalkers Corner already call it Chokers Corner.

I don't think the council is aware of the anger of us in Mortlake, or maybe you don't care. Have you even considered the impact on Mortlake station, the constant queues of drivers who refuse to turn off their engines, the palpable sense of barely contained fury among bus users and commuters ALREADY?

This development is going to be disastrous, but I guess no-one in the council lives here, so the developers can laugh all the way to the bank.

Yours disgustedly,

Jules and Tony Hess (3 Cowley Road)