Comment: The proposal to develop a large secondary school on green space and when one is not needed strongly suggests it has nothing to do with the educational needs of the community but is a form of 'greenwashing' - trying to give the impression that the developers care about the community when they clearly do not. Green space in Mortlake is not abundant as it is, and the traffic, as it is, is already terrible. It is very hard to see how Richmond Council have let the proposal proceed, if that is what has happened. It would good to understand why and whether the reasons have been published. Very disappointing
