Comment: Nothing has significantly changed in these proposals which will severely blight the area. The area already regularly suffers from appalling traffic gridlock (particularly since Hammersmith Bridge closed) and is densely packed with housing. The extreme density of the proposed scheme and the lack of any significant transport plans - along with the huge potential impact of construction vehicles - makes this a scheme that threatens to completely overwhelm a precious conservation area and a wide swathe of residential community. The applicants are ignoring this and tinkering with proposals with the only consideration being maximum private profit
